

RECREATIONAL SHELLFISHING AND NON-H&L FISHING REGULATIONS

All information provided below is summarized from the Code of Virginia and VMRC Regulations. Please refer to the Code sections and Regulations cited for legal documentation. All regulations are subject to change.

Shellfishing

The following activities do not require a license, permit, or documentation in Virginia [Code 28.2-226]:

- Taking a maximum of one bushel of oysters in any one day for personal use, when taken by hand or with ordinary tongs during the oyster season from open rocks.
- Taking a maximum of 250 clams in any one day for personal use, when taken by hand or with ordinary tongs from open areas.
- Harvest of oysters or clams, for personal use, from a private lease by the leaseholder, or the person authorized or employed by a leaseholder.

It is unlawful to remove oysters or clams from privately leased areas, private property (and adjacent intertidal area) without permission from the leaseholder or upland property owner, or from areas condemned by the Virginia Department of Health.

When deciding where to harvest your oysters or clams, please consult the VMRC Web Map. This map can be used to assist in locating areas where recreational harvest can be undertaken. You may oyster or clam in the “Public Grounds” or “Public Clamming Grounds” areas as long as they are not overlapped by red “Shellfish Condemnation Zones”.

For more information on Shellfish Safety and Condemnation Zones, see the Virginia Department of Health.
